Monica Lee Copeland

Writer and Literary Advocate

Monica Lee Copeland is a veteran performer and writer who has toured her work extensively throughout the US and abroad. She writes sobering short stories about family life, low-toned romantic verse, and monologues about this community and its streets. Monica is currently the Host and Founding Director of Indelible Ink: a Vanguard Performance Art Series. The project operates under the Pasadena Arts Counsel and features literary artists, singer/songwriters and a fine variety acts in Pasadena. She is also on the leadership team for Pasadena Lit Fest 2011, the first-ever festival of authors for greater Pasadena. In addition to her numerous artistic endeavors, Monica owns a strategic marketing consulting firm.
